

SENSITIVE ISSUES

Background

The District recognizes that controversy is a natural element of a democratic society, associated with learning. The study of controversial issues is therefore an appropriate and necessary part of the school program.

In supporting the study of controversial issues, the District has three objectives:

- The development of good citizens through the educational system.
- The encouragement of responsible citizenship through the ability to discuss, listen and dissent.
-